

$a$  is the intended trajectory,  $c$  is the traveled trajectory,  $\alpha$  is the divergence angle.  $V$  is the base speed constant. The coordinate system is aligned to the intended trajectory. The system uses a PID control mechanism characterised by the  $PID$  function. This function is dependent on three constants that were found by trial and error.